

Frankfurt tube renovation

ARCHITECTURE / 25 SEP 2006 /

Just as we were about to cry out for no more dull stations, along came Schoyerer Architekten BDA with its rainbow-coloured tube station renovation in Frankfurt-Heddernheim. Not only does this aluminium-clad structure look eye-catchingly light, due to backlighting, but the panel colour changes when a train enters and leaves the station, from yellow to orange on one platform and from blue to green on the other. The clearly defined steel beam roof forms stand on irregularly placed columns and to make the waiting even more pleasant, the city bound platform comes with a fully glazed kiosk-shop to match.
